

MISCELLANEOUS CLIPPINGS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Ozolgosa, the assassin of the late President McKinley refuses to have a spiritual adviser.

To Paris by rail in the same car from New York sounds very well, but it undoubtedly would be a tiresome trip.

Each member of the Confederate Veteran camps will be asked to contribute $1 to the Jefferson Davis monument fund.

The Episcopal Convention will consider a resolution providing for an arbitration committee to settle disputes when invited to do so.

Well-informed Catholics believe the next Consistory at Rome will be held in February and will mark the beginning of the Pope's Jubilee.

Down at Paris, Tenn., a zealous preacher has carried the war into the enemies country and is holding a series of revivals in a distillery.

We understand from a number of our leading farmers that the corn in this section will turn out much better than was expected a month or so ago.

The desire for free entrance of their tobacco and sugar into our market is operating strongly to advance the annexation feeling among the Cubans.

Anarchists nor those who look upon anarchy with any degree of favor should be tolerated in any community any more than rattlesnakes are tolerated.

Cash prizes amounting to $1,000,000 will be offered as live stock premiums by the World's Fair, if plans do not go wrong. That ought to bring out the best.

There are two candidates for Mayor of Fulton: W. C. Craft and J. F. Fall; and four for police Judge: J. W. Sellars, W. P. Nolen, Herbert Carr and R. S. Ellis.

The funeral services over the body of the late Lorenzo Snow, President of the Mormon Church, took place in Salt Lake Sunday. The burial was at Brigham City.

A French Count is sailing across the Mediterranean. He ascended near Toulon Saturday, and expects to reach Algeria Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

It looks somewhat as if the Democratic party will have to grow smaller before it grows better. As for the Republican party, it is like an Indian—good when dead.

Johann Most, the great anarchist leader, has been sentenced to one year in the penitentiary in New York for publishing a seditious article the day following McKinley's assassination.

It is the duty of every citizen to buy everything possible of the home dealer. Try it during the next six months and see if it won't be the means of greatly increasing the volume of business.

The recent frosts and rains have bro't the pecans and acorns hickory nuts down in showers and now is the time for nutting parties, papaw picnics, 'simmons, 'possums and grapes.

The United States Navy has not sufficient men to man the vessels available and under construction in case of war, and Congress may be asked to increase the enlisted strength by 3,000 men.

President Roosevelt is quoted as saying he will not decline the Republican nomination for President in 1904 if the people approve of his administration, but that he will not pander to any cliques, combinations or movements to secure it.

One dollar from each surviving Confederate veteran will build a pretty considerable monument to Jefferson Davis, but if pensions were paid to the Rebs the number of survivors would represent enough dollars to build a regular tower.

The time has now come for a perfect understanding of President Roosevelt's way of running the Republican machine down South. It is a mean thing to take advantage of a man's enthusiasm when he enters the public service with a new broom.

The political situation in New York City ought to be a field for bringing forth the oratory of Bourke Cochran. Which side he will land on is of course a problem, but either way there will be phrases in his remarks that will be interesting and inspiring on general principles.

To free himself from blackmailers, George F. Wolfe, a prominent shoe manufacturer of Columbus, O., has made public his life's secret—that he was in his youth a convict in the Indiana State Prison South. He went to Columbus penniless and a stranger. He is now wealthy and respected.

United States District Attorney Vaughan, of Birmingham, Ala., during a recent visit to Washington, told President Roosevelt that he thought the Federal offices should be given to Republicans under a Republican Administration. He objected to the appointment of former Gov. Jones as Judge.

If you wish to be miserable, you must think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you; you'll be as wretched as you choose.

Lieut. Peary has reached the northern end of Greenland, and was disappointed to find it didn't extend as far north as he expected as he hoped to follow on it further toward the pole. He has also come to the conclusion, reached by Dr. Hays, surgeon of the Kane expedition, that there is an open polar sea. Whether there is anything up there like what Capt. John Cleve Symmes contended will probably be known in a year or two, for Peary has all the facilities that could be thought of to enable him to reach the pole. He must take care not to slide down into Symmes' hole, if it happens to be there.

JUST FOR FUN A COLUMN OF WIT AND HUMOR FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Sohnny—Say, pa, why are poets born and not made?

"I'm sorry to see you've been fighting, Johnnie. You've got a black eye!"
"Aw, yer don't say so. Take yer sorrow home to yer own kid. He's got two."

Subscriber—What! No fire in the stove this cold weather?
Editor—None; but there is a creditor coming around this morning who has promised to make it hot for me!

This note was found in the postoffice recently: "Deer May—The reason I didn't laff when you laff at me yesterday was a bile on my face. I kan't laff but you know I love you. P. S.—Burn this up."

"Always think before you speak," said the prudent man.
"I can't possibly arrange it," answered the young politician. "I'd have to disappoint too many audiences."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Scrappington—Here is an item which says that in Patagonia a wife can be purchased for one dollar.
Mr. Scrappington—Well, there may be wives in Patagonia that are worth that much.

She—You tell me I am the sweetest girl you ever saw. Now, tell me true. How many other girls have you told the same thing?

He—Oh, well, I suppose I have told it to quite a lot, but then you know, you are the first one who ever believed me.

"Was anything really accomplished at your sewing circle this afternoon?" asked the scornful man.
"Yes," she said at last. "We turned out half a yard of embroidery and forty-eight yards of gossip."—Chicago Post.

He—Er—now that we are engaged, I suppose you—er—won't object to my kissing you?

She—Certainly not. Help yourself. And when mamma comes in I want you to kiss her also.

He—S—say, let's b—break the engagement.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PLEASURE RESORT FOR HIS FRIENDS.

CAPT. TYLER, OF FULTON COUNTY, BUILDS A LAKE.

Special to Louisville Times.

Hickman, Ky., Oct. 14.—Capt. H. A. Tyler, the wealthy Fulton county citizen, has made a lake at his residence in this city and it abounds in all kinds of fine fish. It is also covered with lake moss and pond lilies. Water locks of solid stone masonry, at the head of the lake furnish water for the lake. An artesian well, already sunk to a depth of nearly 500 feet is to furnish water for the locks in the future. Bath house, pleasure boats, etc., are at the service of his friends.

BLACK CURSE ON HIM.

CURIOUS FATE OF A LOUISVILLE DOCTOR WHO FAILED TO CURE A CHILD.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13.—The prophetess who foretold the strange line of events culminating in the death of Dr. Fred C. Lamberger within nine days after the death of a fine mare, a colt, a hunting dog and her puppies, which the woman likewise predicted, has been found. She is a spiritualist medium, living on Shelby and Laurel streets. The story told by the woman is a strange one.

"The Doctor came to me first to see about a dog that he had strayed. He had tried every way to find it and came to me as a last resort. I told him that the dog would never come back. Then the 'guides' began to speak to me. I told the Doctor that he was in trouble—in great danger—and he laughed at me. He said: 'Come out to my house Mrs. Peterman, and look around for yourself.'"

"I went to his office, 'Doctor,' I said 'you are in the greatest danger. Some thing is the matter with this house. There is some strange power over every thing.'"

"Well," he said, "a woman came to me two weeks ago, placed her hand on my shoulder, stared at me a minute and then placed on me and everything I had the black curse in this world and the next. She did this because when I had been called in to attend her little baby I had diagnosed the case as diphtheria and playedard the horse. The woman and her family objected to this, and when the baby died they bitterly denounced me. I had done my duty, and would have paid no thought to the matter if the mother had not come to my house and given me the black curse but of course that's nothing."

"I went with him out to the barn," the medium continued. "The power for evil was awful there. The Doctor was laughing at me, but I liked him so that I had to tell him. I do not know what it was. I just had to speak. I told him that his mare would die, his colt would die, the pups would die, and that everything left in the barn must die, and the curse would be on him nine days after the death of the mare. If he lived through the ninth day he had a chance. But I did not see how he could live through the ninth day."

"You'll go like a shot, doctor," I said. "Well any time I go I'll be ready, Mrs. Peterman," he laughed.
Mrs. Peterman declares that these things were revealed to her by some occult influence. She had never seen the doctor before. The mother who gave the curse has left Louisville.
